

Working successfully with your supervisor

The relationship you have with your supervisor is most important professional relationship throughout the PhD process. Every supervisory relationship is unique and its success is dependant upon the aspirations of both the candidate and the supervisor.

Through discussion and case studies this workshop provides an opportunity to explore the student-supervisor relationship. During this workshop, you will:

- Consider the roles and responsibilities of both student and supervisor
- Think about how to build the relationship with your supervisor
- Learn how to manage the relationship with your supervisor
- Consider different supervisory styles
- Consider strategies to get the most out of supervisory meetings
- Pre-empt problems that might arise
- What to do if things go wrong

This is a 3-hour interactive workshop for 1st year postgraduate researchers. It can be delivered in person or online.

What others have said was useful about the course:

Understanding the student's responsibility

Descriptions of supervisor types

Interaction with other participants helped me make new friends

Looking at problems from the supervisors perspective - really helpful

Working with your supervisor's style and preferences - very motivating

Discussions and finding out others views and opinions

Excellent structure, interesting, relevant

Excellent presenter - spoke clearly and friendly

Contact:

Dr Jennifer Allanson

www.tuplespace.net

email: jenallanson68@gmail.com

mobile: 0777 3951 788